

OPEN POSITION

- Freelance Project Coordinator
-

EHMSG IS HIRING!

The European Helicobacter and Microbiota Study Group (EHMSG) is a multidisciplinary group founded by a collaboration of pioneers in the field of Helicobacter pylori research in October 1987 and is currently registered in Austria as a non-profit organization.

Currently, we are participants in the EU-funded TOGAS (Towards Gastric Cancer Screening Implementation in the European Union) project (a consortium of 20 partners from 14 European countries that will work for recommending appropriate implementation of gastric cancer screening across the European Union (EU), and evaluate various strategies for effective prevention of gastric cancer mortality in all EU member states) and have an opening for a freelance project coordinator until the end of February 2026.

You bring experience in the field of (EU-funded) project coordination and see yourself as an expert in communication with high management skills.

Your tasks

- Coordinate and organize activities in the framework of the TOGAS project;
- Liaise with partners and facilities within the participating institutions;
- Monitor timely implementation of all planned activities and indicators;
- Support the preparation of scientific and financial reports;
- Organize and participate in scientific and dissemination events;

Your profile

- Phd degree in Biomedical Sciences or related discipline;
- Educational and professional path with International experience;
- At least 10 years of research experience in Gastrointestinal (GI) pathology; particular knowledge in the genetic basis and molecular pathways of gastric cancer will be valued;
- Publication track record in international peer-reviewed journals in the GI cancer field;
- Several years (at least 3) of professional experience in the field of (EU-funded) project coordination, including management of the funding and related bureaucracy;
- Know-how in the field of public administration and financing execution rules are an absolute plus;
- Distinct project management and coordination skills;
- Experience in the coordination of European training programs;
- Excellent English skills (speaking and writing proficiency);
- High cost-awareness & communication skills;
- Leadership and negotiation skills;
- Commitment, flexibility, and ability to work under pressure.

Our offer

An interesting and varied freelance job in an exciting project.
A self-responsible position in a peer-driven project environment.
Estimated weekly workload of 5 hours.

The offer is exclusively aimed at freelancers.
Gross annual remuneration is starting at EUR 12,387.
The position is funded by the EU4Health programme.

Should you be interested in applying, do send a motivation letter, CV, and credentials to office@ehmsg.org until May 19, 2023